

Gilmour – live by satellite

THE Exeter Picturehouse is hosting the cinematic premiere of David Gilmour's new DVD, Remember That Night-Live at the Royal Albert Hall, in a one night only special event on Thursday.

The screening will be broadcast live by satellite from London's Leicester Square in high definition quality using the latest cinematic technology.

David Gilmour, the voice and guitar of legendary rock band Pink Floyd, will also be performing a live song along with a question and answer session. To submit a question, visit www.davidgilmour.com

The DVD features contributions from celebrated musicians Richard Wright, Phil Manzanera, Guy Pratt, Dick Parry, Jon Carin and Steve DiStanislaio, with special guests David Crosby, Graham Nash and David Bowie. This is a unique opportunity to see the DVD before it goes on general release.

'It's a real honour for the Picturehouse to be one of the few cinemas chosen nationally to host this prestigious event,' said Andy Botterill, general manager at Exeter Picturehouse, 'and it is part of our ongoing commitment to bring national and international events to Exeter live via satellite.'
